Speaking Where The Bible Speaks; Silent Where The Bible Is Silent

REPORT FOR THE MONTH OF OCTOBER 2013 FROM CAMEROON---

By Abasiama Archibong

As almost always, let us begin the good news of Cameroon missions efforts by recognizing the fact that we are a formidable team for the propagation of the truth in the world. With this consciousness in us, I am pleased to say how much we appreciate the unwavering contributions of all the members of West African missions' family. The great success secured in the preaching work thus far in Cameroon could not have been easily attained by a mere indigenous effort only. The realities of the huge achievement recorded in terms of soul-winning, congregational up-building, and mass media publicity of the Church of Christ in Cameroon spearheaded by the Washing Point congregation, are all due to the integrated co-operation of brethren at home and abroad. In a nutshell, we are saying a million thanks to all of our supporters, contributors, donors and coordinators, for their participation in the activities of this providential mission.

The impact of the work that we have been doing together is tremendous. For instance, the Church of Christ in a place called Muyenge in the southwest region of the country has been revived as a result of the gospel meeting that took place there in the month of October 2013. The Muyenge Church of Christ has benefited from the services of the Washing point ministry which in turn is sustained by the generosity and prayers of our partners in Raytown, in Statesboro, etc. We thank you for accepting to work with us all these years. With your assistance, we have been able to contact our audience in Cameroon and the gospel is communicated. Consequently, souls have been and more are still converted into Christ. That is not all: new converts are being congregated and their faith confirmed or established, and they are well on their way to being consecrated as leaders in the hose of God. What a beautiful cycle of missions we have as a result of our unique way of unity in spreading the most important message the world desperately needs to hear again and again.

As we walk and work together, we cannot turn back. Why? Because the fruits of effective evangelism are visible every now and then. In October, the Lord beautified our effort by saving a lone soul. The picture of the immersion event is herein appended. His name is Evaristus Martin. Please keep praying for his growth in the Lord, bearing in mind that God is able to turn these Christian babies of today into spiritual breadwinners tomorrow.

Also pray for us and our families to stay in good health so that we will not be distracted by sickness. Experience indicates that while we spread the gospel net of Christ and stretch ourselves to catch souls for Christ, we ourselves get caught in the mosquito net of malaria.

The sickness then renders us anemic and weak physically. This kind of scenario took place in my life and that of my son, Providence. We were all hospitalized for the same sickness. By God's healing hands and human medical manipulation, we are freed again from the dangerous tropical infection.

To cap it all, we love you and thank you for accepting to work with us. Someday, God will, we shall literally give each other a big hug. Bye for now.

Looking to Jesus

by Bud Lambert

It is said about General Douglas MacArthur, one of the greatest leaders of World II, that when his troops were down, to encourage them to continue fighting and not give up hope, he would fearlessly stand in clear view of them. As Christians, you and I are fighting an even greater battle against an even greater enemy, Satan (Ephesians 6:12). Our fight is sometimes so ferocious we become weak and begin surrendering to the adversary. In times like these, we can be encouraged by looking to our leader, Jesus. In the New Testament book of Revelation, chapters 1-3, Jesus paints a portrait of Himself, a portrait designed to encourage His battle-worn fighters. He pictures Himself as:

- Being not far removed from His people and their struggle, but dwelling energetically among them (Revelation 1:3; 2:1).
- He is like a son of man, a leader who knows His people and thus, who knows exactly what is best for them (Revelation 1:13).
- He is eternal (2:8), a leader who will never be defeated or who will never desert His soldiers.
- He has supreme authority (Revelation 1:15; 3:7).
- He is powerful and durable (Revelation 1:15; 2:18).
- He is genuine (Revelation 3:7).
- He is all knowing (Revelation 1:14; 2:18).
- And He possesses the only weapon powerful enough both to save His people and to destroy their adversary (Revelation 1:16; 2:12).

What a leader! Whenever you feel spiritually weak and you catch yourself surrendering to sin and wanting to give up on trying to live right, be revived by spending more time in the Word, looking to Jesus.
